In Writing 4030, we’ll discuss theories of visual perception and rhetorically analyze different types of persuasive texts—including comics, short films, advertisements, journalistic photographs, web sites, and graphs & charts. You’ll examine the kinds of visual arguments used in your own discipline, as well as compose your own information visualization texts.