

WRTG 4970

RHETORICS OF GENDER

Spring 2022 MoWe 11:50am - 1:10pm

This course is designed to give students an introduction to gender research that is distinctly rhetorical. Students will use theories from contemporary and classical rhetoric and criticism to interrogate the construction and performance of gender in a variety of social settings and media, the gendering of the writing studies/writing instruction, and the gendering of the tradition of rhetoric itself.

Students must take WRTG 2010 or equivalent prior to taking this course.

Fulfills Upper Division Communication/Writing (CW)